Stoner + Forss + Borg - Lektor Tapes

-an experiment in the borderland between acoustic jazz and electronica.

Last year the jazz quartet The Stoner gained ecstatic recognition as a brand new comet in the Swedish music sky. Several reviewers declared the band to be one of the most important representatives of a new direction in Swedish jazz. In the wait leading up to their second album "The New Pink", comes this piece of music; the result of a unique collaboration taking place in a Stockholm basement last summer. The front man of The Stoner, Nils Berg, describes the project: "At the outset the idea was to figure out whether two computers could communicate with a jazz band".

Forss and Borg are internationally renowned for their extreme, hip hop influenced beats and soundscapes arriving straight from the chopped up world of sampling and recycling. In 2004 Forss released the album "Soulhack" on Sonar Kollektiv, an album that gave him a name in electronica circles world wide. For the last two years he has performed together with Carl Åborg under the name of "Forss vs. Borg"
